DB Aviation Extends Midwest Reach with Expansion into Green Bay

Green Bay-based fleet expansion enables company to provide chartered air services at Austin Straubel International Airport

WAUKEGAN, Ill., January 20, 2010 – DB Aviation, Inc. (DB Aviation), a leading private aviation solutions company, today announced that it is expanding its Midwest presence and charter fleet with the addition of two private jets in Green Bay. The jets will be based at Austin Straubel International Airport (GRB) and are available for utilization by DB Aviation’s customers, effective immediately.

DB Aviation will provide air charter services for customers located in, or traveling to, the greater Green Bay area, including Appleton, Oshkosh, Door County and Sturgeon Bay. These services include DB Aviation’s personal and business flight chartering, as well as a wide range of concierge offerings, thereby ensuring that all travel needs are accommodated before, during and after the flight.

With a number of industries driving the Green Bay economy including manufacturing, agriculture, transportation, there’s a viable customer base that could potentially benefit from DB Aviation’s services. According to the Green Bay Chamber of Commerce, Green Bay’s economy is consistently positioned in the top 25 of 313 metropolitan areas in the United States.

“By enhancing our Midwest fleet, we’re now well-positioned to meet the growing demand for services in the region while also providing expanded coverage to our existing clients interested in traveling to Green Bay for work or pleasure,” said Dave Brittsan, president and CEO of DB Aviation. “Strategically located in the heart of the Midwest, our growing presence in Wisconsin gives customers the opportunity to efficiently access both urban and remote areas along the eastern United States and throughout the Midwest.”

DB Aviation’s two aircraft available for charter in Green Bay are a Citation II and a Citation Excel, both manufactured by Cessna. The Citation Excel accommodates up to nine passengers in comfort and style, with a range of 1,860 nautical miles, enabling them to travel to markets throughout the Midwest, as well as the greater Boston, New York City, Philadelphia and Washington, D.C. areas. For regional trips, The Citation II provides comfortable accommodations for six passengers, with a 1,325 nautical mile range.

The Citation II and Citation Excel are the latest additions to DB Aviation’s growing charter fleet, which is among the most diverse in the private aviation industry. It comprises 30 aircraft located throughout the continental United States and can accommodate various travel ranges, passenger numbers and pricing parameters.

“After flying with us, Green Bay area customers will come to know and appreciate our company’s vigorous focus on safety and security, highly-trained pilots and best-in-class customer service, including our ability to anticipate our customers’ needs time and again,” Brittsan added.
